This includes, but is not limited to, reverse engineering, copying features, functionality, or user interface elements, or using the software as part of any tool or service that could reduce the demand for the Company Software or other products and services owned by Company. Any such use shall constitute a material breach of this Agreement.

3. TERM

The initial term of each software subscription provided by Company is typically one (1) year from the date of purchase unless otherwise specified at the time of sale (excluding Trial Licenses as outlined in Section 4.2.a). Additional pro-rated Licenses may be purchased by Licensee later for a shorter term to align with renewals of the existing Licensee Subscriptions and are subject to the terms of this Agreement. This Agreement is effective upon execution of the Software purchase order. Upon expiration of the Subscription Term, the Licensee must renew the subscription to maintain access to the software and associated services.

4. GRANT OF LICENSE

4.1 Grant of License to Licensee

Subject to the terms of this License Agreement, Company grants to Licensee a nonexclusive, nontransferable license to use and execute the Software. All other rights are reserved to Company.

4.2 License Type

Software is licensed on a subscription basis. License models are as follows and this Agreement covers each:

- a. Trial - Company may offer a trial Software license for a limited period to allow Licensee to evaluate Software features and functionality before committing to a full license. Licensee may only use the trial Software during the designated period and solely for non-commercial evaluation purposes. Any data, configurations, or settings created within the Trial Software may not be transferred, exported, or used in a production environment. Upon expiration of the Trial Period, the Licensee's access to the Trial Software will automatically terminate unless a full license is purchased.
- b. Standard License - This is an individual license of the Software sold by the "connector" and refers to a license for a single application of the Software that connects to a single ArcGIS organization URL.
- c. Site License - This is the annual license for a single application of the Software, allowing administrators to create an unlimited number of connectors within the Licensee domain. Each connector will be created to co-term with the original License and is covered by this Agreement.
- d. Perpetual Site License - This license grants the licensee (end-user) the right to use a specific version of the software program indefinitely after a single, upfront payment. Unlike subscription models, this license does not expire and permits continuous operation of the licensed software version, it typically includes the right to receive future major version upgrades (new feature releases) by agreeing to a maintenance/support agreement at the time of purchase. Maintenance contracts must be renewed after expiration, or a new perpetual license must be purchased. This license essentially conveys ownership of the right to use the software as is for its remaining useful life, subject to the terms and restrictions outlined in this End-User License Agreement (EULA).
- e. Professional Services License - This license allows administrators to create connectors for a single application of the Software to connect to affiliated organization domains during professional services engagements. These connectors will be created to co-term with the original License, and the organization receiving them will also be subject to the terms of this License Agreement. The number of ArcGIS instances authorized via the Software is unlimited as long as those are affiliated with the Licensee as documented on the official purchase order, quotes, and/or invoices. This license ( and the resulting connectors ) are not intended for resale, and use as such is strictly forbidden without the express written consent of Company.

4.3 Maintenance

Company shall provide Licensee with software maintenance for the Software. Software maintenance shall include bug fixes, software patches, security patches, enhancements, and technical support based on Licensee's support package. (see GEO Jobe Software Support Packages) Company will provide support only for the most current major release of the Software. To ensure complete use of the support services, Licensee is advised to ensure implementation of the latest major release. An updated build may be requested at any time.

4.4 Limits on Usage

Software is licensed based on the number of connector instances to which Licensee can connect to and administer via the Software as defined by License type in section 4.2. There are no exceptions or discounts for non-production instances of ArcGIS Online or ArcGIS Enterprise. The use of Software to connect to unauthorized ArcGIS Online or ArcGIS Enterprise instances violates this License Agreement. The number of connector instances authorized via the Software will be documented in the executed Software purchase order and associated quote.

4.5 Express Prohibition on Patenting

Licensee may not, under any circumstances, incorporate the Software into any product, process, or method to be patented or protected by similar rights granted. Additionally, Software shall not be used in any preferred embodiments of patented products, processes, or methods. Any attempts to seek a patent or similar right incorporating Software shall render this License void, and all rights granted under this License shall be immediately revoked.

4.6 Technology Neutrality

The rights granted herein apply in any media or format, whether presently used or hereafter devised. These rights include the right to make any modifications necessary in order to use the Software on platforms for which it was not intended. If such modifications are made, any attribution and copyright notices included in the Software shall be included and left wholly intact.

Licensee shall give Company timely and reasonable written notice of any action, sole control over the defense or settlement, and reasonable assistance regarding the defense or settlement.
